

Contents

Foreword by Catherine Saxelby	v
Acknowledgements	xv
How to use this book	xvi
Introduction	xvii
1 The Nectar Way to freedom	1
What is the Nectar Way? Spelling out NECTAR
2 Jenny's story	5
Before Nectar After Nectar My quality world is now Freedom, fun, love and power Nectar can change your life

3 Natural eating versus dieting 13

The unnatural eater The natural eater What's the difference? How did I change? A new lifestyle A dieter's profile What's my problem?

4 Diets don't work! 25

Atrens' message The trouble with diets What dieting teaches us Information as criticism Discomfort as a trigger

5 A Control Theory primer 33

The principles of Control Theory The Five Basic Needs Eating and the Five Basic Needs Diets and the Five Basic Needs The Three Filters The all-we-know world The quality world Signals Options for behaviour Summing up Control Theory in Nectar The thoughts that lead to freedom

6 All foods are equal 49

Freedom to choose Power to choose and act Recognising your choices Applying all this to food A checklist: All foods are equal

7 Selecting 67

How the three filters work Learning to jump that last hurdle A checklist: Selecting

8 Faith in the future 75

The Minnesota story Finding the hidden factor Stuck in the Future Perfect Living in the Pleasant Present Changing your thinking
A checklist: Faith in the future

9 Signals 91

Recognising signals Natural eaters' signals
Static signals Getting just one signal Fear of the hunger signal What's wrong about being too full Identifying the two signals – and ignoring the rest Eating and guilt Cutting through the guilt Sorting out confusing signals

10 Starting 104

Feeling the hunger signal Talking to your stomach Illogical eating Trusting your stomach
A checklist: Starting

11 Stopping 116

How to stop Start practising now Recognising progress
A checklist: Stopping

12 Food is not a feeling 134

Foods and the brain Coping with cravings Feelings that trigger eating The behavioural strategy
How to worry constructively

13 Coming out of the cupboard 156

But I love you the way you are Coping strategies A letter to my loved ones Lifelong habits are need-satisfying Customise Nectar for your special needs Exercise, progress and results Some progress questions The myth of three square meals

14 Helping your child to become a natural eater 184

How could I have done that to Cassie? What can I do now? The overweight child Be a role model Use the Nectar Principles

15 More questions and answers 194

16 Putting Nectar Thinking into practice 206

Considering your options Getting results
The Nectar Pledge

Reading 216

Nectar Courses 218